

ONE MAN'S OPINIONS

BY N. D. COCHRAN.

Will Strikebreakers Strike?—We don't get all the news from Colorado in the press dispatches. It may be public interest in the coal strike has died down since other big news stories have diverted the public mind. However, I find an interesting echo of the strike in the Denver Express, which says there is some talk of the strikebreakers employed by the Colorado Fuel & Iron Co. (the Rockefeller concern) striking because of changes which materially decrease the earnings of non-union miners.

The story says company officials believe they are safe from such a strike, because the strikebreakers would starve if they leave the mines, unless they got the benefit of union relief funds. Union officials have refused to accept as member of the union many strikebreakers who have applied for membership at Trinidad and Walsenburg, saying they can't afford to care for the families of men who went there to help crush unionism.

This should be a lesson to strikebreakers, but it probably won't be. These men were imported at high wages for the purpose of helping the coal trust crush unionism and starve union miners into submission and slavery.

Now the strikebreakers find that they are slaves and must remain in slavery, because they have no right to appeal to their own class—the working class for relief.

The working class has no love for them, and the employing class don't ever respect them. What pitiable slaves!

When will workers learn that they all belong to one class, and that there can be profit, no happiness, no comfort, no life worth living, when they become tools of their enemies in the profit-making class and turn on their brother wage slaves?

How much lower can a man sink in misery, slavery and degradation than to be a scab and fight the battle of his masters against his brothers?

LETTERS TO EDITOR

ADVICE TO THE PARENTS OF "LAST CHANCE" BOYS

Editor Day Book:—No parent can expect a boy to be truthful if the boy finds that the parents do not keep faith with him.

Making a promise merely to hush some insistent boy's voice, or to enable the parent to escape giving the boy what he asks for, is not good for the boy nor you unless you can keep your promise.

After boys have been disappointed two or three times they will put no faith in their parents' word and will begin to feel that they, too, can make promises merely to be obliging.

Above all else, remember that boys are trained by example.

You should be more than careful how you rashly promise when you know it is impossible to perform.

Be real if you want your boy to be real. You are only fooling yourself when you try to fool a boy.

Jack Robbins.

WOMAN CHASERS

Editor Day Book:—I have watched the story of vice how for a long time, and must say the houn' dawg LAW is very badly kicked around. We have vice in Chicago for all time to come, and who is going to boss or regulate it? A committee of 15? No. Our soup would be good enough if there wasn't so many cooks to spoil it. You may talk about slit skirts, bad women, alley bums, can-rushers, millionaires, high-toned society and pimps, but when you come right down to cap rock, with the form of a man like Williams or Wolfe Logan, that will pick up a defenseless creature dressed in skirts for a plant, and then double-cross her on a pretense of giving her $3, then give her the